Abstract

COVID-19 pandemic has disrupted teaching in a variety of institutions. It has tested the readiness of academic institutions to deal with such an abrupt crisis. Online learning has become the main method of instruction during the pandemic in India. The analysis showed that the common online platforms in India were Zoom, Microsoft Teams, which offered online interactive classes, and WhatsApp for communication with students outside the class. Even though online learning works as a temporary alternative due to COVID-19, it cannot substitute for face-to-face learning.

The Corona virus triggered the process of online education for schoolchildren. Its primary goal was to ensure that the lockdown had no negative impact on children's education. After some problems in the beginning, the children were enjoying the online sessions. Teachers were also assigning assignments to the students at the same time. Along with this, children were being connected with artistic activities; however, the effects were mixed.

Let's see the advantages and disadvantages of online classes

There are two sides to everything. While these online classes
